I. Introduction

The ability to pay (ATP) is designed to allow all units of local government to compete on an equal basis for points awarded for locally committed funds in the Community Revitalization rating process under the North Carolina Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program.

The ATP is based on three factors:

- 1) Population
- 2) Per capita income
- 3) Tax valuation

Each factor is scored on a range from 0 to 110. A score of 0 is considered to indicate a municipality or county having the least capacity for financially contributing to a project. Conversely, a score of 110 means a unit of government has the greatest capacity for making a monetary commitment. Municipalities will be compared with other municipalities and counties with other counties.

Each factor is scored on a 0 to 110 basis for each potential applicant. Using population as an example, the town having the smallest population in the state would receive a score of 0 for population. The town or city having the largest population would receive a score of 110. A town with a population halfway between the smallest and largest populations would receive 55 points. Per capita income and tax valuation are scored in the same manner. The scoring results from these three areas are averaged to arrive at a final ATP score.

The information presented in this document gives the data and related scoring for the three areas and the final ATP scores, first for counties and secondly for municipalities. All counties and municipalities receiving funds directly from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (entitlement counties and municipalities) are omitted from the listings.

The population and per capita income data were obtained from the U.S. Census Bureau. Tax valuation figures were obtained from the North Carolina Department of Revenue. The data used was the latest available data. If a municipality intends to apply for a Community Revitalization grant but cannot locate itself on the listing, please contact Valerie Woods at (919) 733-2850 (TDD 1-800-735-2962) for further information.
